

Torque Lock Down Software

Written by Administrator

Monday, 16 August 2010 01:41 - Last Updated Monday, 16 August 2010 01:48

I was part of a team that developed a complete Manufacturing Execution System for Lear Corporation in Newark, Delaware. Because of the emphasis on recording the torque values used in tightening the bolts on the seats, the software was called Torque Lock Down software. My primary focus was the inspection and repair modules. Here are screen shots of the product I produced:

Shortly after becoming involved in this project, I was promoted to primary developer.